Initial Cable TV Broadcast of the F-2 Shockwave This Thursday June 12!

(June 9, 2008) The Unified Force Race Championship Tour presented by Comcast will be televised into hundreds of thousands of homes in the region this Thursday, June 12. The initial one-hour broadcast of the Pizza Hut F-2 Shockwave at Pittsburgh's PA Motor Speedway is scheduled to air between the 8 PM and 9 PM on Comcast Three Rivers Region channel CN-8 (channel 188 or 210 depending on location). After the initial broadcast, a bonus version of the event featuring even more racing from the event will be available through Comcast's signature On Demand service, in the Your Town folder.

The Pizza Hut F-2 Shockwave took place on June 1st and featured the 3rd and 4th races of the UFO Race Championship Tour presented by Comcast as it used a unique twin-features format. Both feature events produced amazing 3 and 4 wide racing, multiple lead changes and advances by drivers from deep on the starting grid. The initial broadcast on Comcast CN-8 will showcase the UFO Super Late Model action from the event. The On Demand version will allow viewers to witness more of the racing from the event.

CN8, the Comcast Network reaches 850,000 homes in Western Pennsylvania and parts of Ohio, West Virginia and Maryland. The addition of these television broadcasts emphasizes the commitment of the UFO Race Championship presented by Comcast to provide maximum exposure for the race teams and race sponsors of the region as well as to generate interest and growth in the sport of Super Late Model racing. The UFO Race Championship presented by Comcast is proving to be one of the most exciting innovations in recent history for both race teams and race fans of the region.
